About

Stockton Communications has been established to provide services in the field of speaking engagements, coaching and presentations with impact reflecting decades of experience covering a wide-range of sports at the highest professional levels. Voice-overs are offered to provide a powerful way to connect to an audience or customer with Dick Stockton's well-known and widely recognized voice. However, the combined joining of forces of Dick Stockton and his wife, Jamie Drinkwater Stockton goes beyond these goals. In building relationships with our clients, we feel recognizing charitable organizations cannot take a back seat.

Jamie, a graduate of the University of Arizona College of Pharmacy, has been deep into her community and charitable endeavors. She served as President of the Scottsdale Foundation for the Handicapped, now called STARS. She has served the Town of Carefree as Planning and Zoning Commissioner. Her interest in community service is vast, spurred by the example set by her Father, Herb Drinkwater, the former Mayor of Scottsdale for over 16 years.

We intend to support our community charities to improve lives. A portion of our company's profit will benefit the Empty Bowls Project for Alexandria Central School in Alexandria Bay, N.Y. This organization helps to make sure youth in that area are provided food and educational programs to end hunger. One program they have developed is "The Back Pack Club" which provides food for families in need for the weekend.

Caregiving Youth is another organization we support in Boca Raton, FL. They provide funds for young people caring for family members who are ill, injured, elderly and/or disabled and cannot manage life independently. They address the needs of pre-teens, families, and professionals through education and awareness, research and direct services enabling the children to get proper schooling.
